What You'll Learn:

Training Objectives:

1. Understand the major principles of a strength-based approach to work with at-risk children, youth, and families.
2. Understand the importance of personal self-awareness and self management in working with at-risk clients.
3. Cite specific strength-based verbal interventions to use, to motivate, and to enhance the functioning of at-risk kids and parents.
4. Understand strategies for assisting cognitively-inflexible children and youth.
5. Understand specific cognitive-behavioral techniques that can help at-risk children, youth, and their parents to better self-manage their actions.

All Participants will receive a complimentary book.

Charlie Appelstein, M.S.W. is a nationally prominent youth care specialist and author whose primary focus is on teaching positive, strength-based theories and techniques to professionals who guide at-risk children and youth. Charlie trains and consults throughout the United States, as well as internationally, with treatment facilities, foster care associations, parent groups, schools, and juvenile justice programs. He has authored three youth care books that are widely used within the field, including No Such Thing as a Bad Kid: Understanding and Responding to Kids with Emotional & Behavioral Challenges Using a Positive, Strength-Based Approach. Charlie lives in southern new Hampshire with his wife and teenage daughter.
